Aghil Ebrahimi is the Founder and Principal Attorney at StarGuard Law, a boutique firm representing creators, founders, tech companies, and creative agencies on intellectual property, AI compliance, technology law, and strategic deal-making.

Aghil's practice is grounded in direct, lived experience. Before law school, he studied Computer Science while building an international music career, touring in 30+ countries. He has performed for tens of thousands at some of the world's most renowned venues, including the Dolby Theatre, MGM Grand, the LA Forum, and the Peacock Theater. He also co-founded an entertainment and media company and built a global audience of more than 500,000 followers.

That experience negotiating deals, securing brand partnerships, and seeing firsthand what happens when contracts are not properly drafted is the foundation of his practice. Aghil holds an LL.B. and a J.D. from the University of Montreal, a Computer Science D.E.C. from John Abbott College, and a Certificate in Audio Engineering from the Musicians Institute in Hollywood.

He is admitted to the State Bar of California, the Barreau du Québec, and the Law Society of Ontario, and advises clients in English, French, and Persian.
